This project is designed to produce objective evaluations of judges' performance through observation by retired judges and lay people. After having been adequately trained, the observers will monitor judges' performance on three separate occasions and develop written evaluations of those judges. These written evaluations are then reviewed by "facilitator" judges who then discuss the observers' findings with the judge in question. Ultimately, the project process should identify areas in which judges can improve their on-the-job performance. The general fund dollars included in this amendment account for training costs, per diem payments for retired judges, travel reimbursements, survey analysis costs, and meetings of JPE Commission. However, after the population density adjustment is applied to the raw composite index of these localities, the .8000 cap shall still apply."

Explanation:

(This amendment provides $297.7 million the second year to localities where the population densities are higher than the state's average. Secondly, the proposed changes would reflect a more current update to a local government's ability to pay for public education by utilizing the prior fiscal year's data to the budgeted biennium for the true value of real estate. Lastly, the composite index formula would use the median income rather than the adjusted gross income. It reflects the fact that cities and counties with a relatively high personal income (which is used as a proxy for other taxation indices) do not actually benefit from said persons' income taxes - rather the state does - and that average income is a poor proxy for taxing potential. In order to more accurately reflect "ability to tax," the state should rely on median income, which finds the most common income amount, and not the average.)

"P. Out of this appropriation, $250,000 shall be provided in the second year from the general fund to establish a Virginia Palliative Care Partnership. The partnership shall be a broad-based, multi-disciplinary coalition including the three academic health centers, health care professionals, hospices, hospitals, nursing facilities, health care associations, and community and consumer groups. Funding shall be used by the partnership for such activities as supporting the work of task forces, completing a statewide assessment of available palliative care services and needs, designing a 10-year plan for palliative care in Virginia, conducting community surveys and focus groups, soliciting funding from other sources, and initiating pilot projects in response to identified palliative care needs. The partnership shall submit a report to the Governor, the Secretary of Education, the Chairmen of the House Appropriations and Senate Finance Committees, and the Chairman of the Joint Commission on Health Care prior to November 1, 2005. The report shall include a description of the activities that have been undertaken, a detailed plan for the remainder of the year, and a 10-year plan for palliative care in Virginia."

Explanation:

(This amendment is a recommendation of the Joint Commission on Health Care. This amendment provides general funds in the second year to support planning and assessment activities related to establishing the Virginia Palliative Care Partnership. There are a number of barriers to providing effective palliative care, including the lack of emphasis on palliative care in education and training and, consequently, in practice; extensive under-treatment of pain; and eligibility requirements that restrict access to palliative care. Because of these barriers, there is no coordinated program or statewide effort to address palliative care needs in Virginia.)

(This amendment requires the Secretary of Health and Human Resources to convene a Statewide Task Force for the purpose of developing a plan to assess, identify, and communicate ways to strengthen families within the Commonwealth. Certified nurse midwives participating in a pilot program shall maintain adequate professional liability insurance as determined by the Bureau of Insurance. Certified nurse midwives who do not participate in approved pilot programs shall not be eligible to practice without physician supervision or other requirements associated with prescriptive authority.

3. Not later than October 1, 2005, VDH shall convene stake holders, including but not limited to certified nurse midwives, obstetricians, and family practitioners to define protocols to be used in the pilots. VDH shall report to the Governor and Secretary of Health and Human Resources and the chairmen of the Health Welfare and Institutions and Education and Health Committees on the progress toward implementing the pilot not later than December 15, 2005. The Department of Health Professions, the Department of Medical Assistance Services, and the Bureau of Insurance shall provide assistance to the Department of Health in implementing, monitoring, and evaluating pilot programs under this item. "

Explanation:

(This amendment authorizes the State Board of Health to approve pilot projects that improve access to prenatal, obstetrical, and pediatric services and provides one-time funding to assist in implementing the pilots. Notwithstanding any provision of law or regulation to the contrary, a nurse practitioner licensed by the Boards of Nursing and Medicine in the category of certified nurse midwife who participates in the pilot and agrees to established protocols, will be permitted to provide prenatal and delivery services to women enrolled in the pilot without the requirement for physician supervision and without requiring a written agreement with a physician or medical review to prescribing drugs in Schedules III-VI. Additional general funds are provided in the second year for the pilot programs.)

The Virginia General Assembly, in 2001, required outpatient surgical data to be added to Virginia's health care data reporting system. Previously, only inpatient hospital data was included in the data reporting system. Considering the significant increase in the number of outpatient surgical procedures, having reliable information on these procedures was considered to be very important. Virginia Health Information (VHI) developed the outpatient reporting system and subsidized its operation until 2003 when significant reductions in general fund support required VHI to suspend processing of the outpatient surgical data. The requested funding of $50,000 per year will allow VHI to restore the outpatient reporting system.)

A report on these activities shall be submitted by November 30, 2005, to the Chairmen of the Senate Finance and House Appropriations Committees as well as to the Chairman of the Virginia Commission on Youth."

Explanation:

(This amendment directs the Department of Social Services to continue community grants to organizations that provide community-based family preservation and supportive services designed to strengthen marriages and stabilize families. Federal law encourages, under the Welfare Reform Act, the enactment of state policies and practices that promote the formation and maintenance of two-parent families. In fiscal year 2004, the Department provided $300,000 in grants to organizations seeking to achieve these goals. The grant cycle commenced in October of 2003 and ended September of 2004. Participants included community and faith-based organizations, nonprofit organizations, and public agencies. The grant was to promote innovative approaches to locally identified needs. Projects included activities such as classes, seminars, workshops, inventories, conferences, support groups, and preventive counseling designed for use before, after, or at any stage in a marriage. The 2-1-1 system shall provide information and referrals to health and human services available throughout the Commonwealth. Funding shall be appropriated to cover the costs associated with launching the 2-1-1 system including expanding the hours of the Information and Referral System to 24 hours per day, 7 days per week. The total cost to implement Virginia's 2-1-1 system statewide is $1,000,000 with the balance of funding provided by private and local funds through partnerships established by the six regional Information and Referral centers.

3. The Department of Social Services, in conjunction with the Department of Medical Assistance Services, shall apply for any available federal funding for the 2-1-1 system and report on efforts to implement the system. A report on these activities shall be submitted by November 30, 2005, to the Chairmen of the House Appropriations and Senate Finance Committees, and the Virginia Commission on Youth."

Explanation:

(This amendment provides funding and language to expand the statewide information and referral (I&R) system by implementing a 2-1-1 telephone number for citizens to use in obtaining free information about available health and human services. The Federal Trade Commission has reserved the number "2-1-1" as a national abbreviated dialing code that offers free access to health and human information and referral services. The goal is for the number to be universally recognizable, making a critical connection between individuals and families in needs and the appropriate community-based organization and government agencies. With the implementation of 2-1-1, citizens of Virginia will have 24 hours a day/7 days a week access to the resources contained in the I&R system. It is estimated that call volume will increase by approximately 40 percent once 2-1-1 is implemented in the Commonwealth. In addition, language is added to existing budget language on Virginia's I&R System so that it accurately references many of the specialized health and human resource information and referral services provided by the system to citizens in the Commonwealth. This is a recommendation of the Virginia Commission on Youth.)

3. The Department of Social Services shall communicate with and train all child-serving agencies within the Commonwealth about the availability of the statewide Information and Referral System. Information on the Statewide Information and Referral System shall also be included within the Department's electronic mailings to all local and regional offices at least biannually."

Explanation:

(This amendment adds language directing the Department of Social Services, as well as the Secretaries of Health and Human Resources, Education and Public Safety to assist in ensuring that Virginia's Information and Referral (I&R) System operates as a single source or information clearinghouse on services available for families or those working with children and families. With more extensive information on services, this clearinghouse would be a timesaving and vital link to information on services for youth and families, community members, professionals, and policy makers. The Virginia Information and Referral (I&R) System has existed for almost a quarter of a century. Section 63.2-222 of the Code of Virginia established a statewide I&R system which is designed to collect and maintain accurate and complete resource data on a statewide basis. The I&R system: (1) collects and maintains accurate and complete resource data on a statewide basis; (2) links citizens needing human services with appropriate community resources to satisfy those needs; (3) assists in planning for human services delivery at the local, regional and state levels; and (4) provides information to assist decision-makers in allocating financial and other resources to respond to state and local human service priorities. However, only 59.2 percent of the soil information Virginia has collected is in a digitized format. Consequently, the remaining 10.6 million acres need to be digitized for use in local, state, and federal planning. For instance, the relatively new Conservation Reserve Program, operated by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, requires digitized soils information. In fiscal year 2005, 202 watersheds were approved for participation in this program, which provides a $4 federal match to each dollar contributed to the program by the Commonwealth. Explanation:

(This amendment provides $1.0 million from the general fund in the second year as a local match to repair and rehabilitate three flood control dams located in Craig County that were listed as "high safety hazard" by the Department of Conservation and Recreation's Dam Safety Program. Craig County will be seeking $1.9 million in federal funds for the repair and rehabilitation of these three dams from the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Natural Resources Conservation Service, which administers a program for the rehabilitation of flood control dams originally constructed as part of a federal small watershed flood control program. This federal program, however, requires a local match of 35 percent.

It should be noted that the county's request for funding will be forced to compete against as many as 11,000 dams originally built as part of the small watershed flood control program, and nationwide, the federal government has only allocated $27.5 million for repairs. Currently, there are 150 small watershed flood control dams located in Virginia, and 104 of those dams are owned by soil and water conservation districts.)

Explanation:

(This amendment provides $1.4 million from the general fund in the second year for the relief of some localities' publicly-owned wastewater treatment plants. The additional general fund dollars are offset by a reduction in the nongeneral fund fee revenue collected by the Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ). The affected treatment plants had renewed their wastewater treatment permits just prior to DEQ's transition to an annual fee structure for these wastewater treatment permits. Consequently, in a few instances, publicly-owned wastewater treatment plants that had only months before paid a one-time application fee for the renewal of their discharge permits were then required to also pay the annual fee. This is a short-term problem affecting very few publicly-owned wastewater treatment plants. Application fees are no longer required by the agency, and in most instances, the actual fees paid by wastewater treatment plants for their discharge permits have been reduced.)

Explanation:

(This amendment provides additional general fund resources ($70,981) and a position to the Department of Historic Resources for the addition of a full-time historic easement program coordinator. Historic easements are often the most economically efficient method of preserving Virginia's historic structures because they are voluntarily entered into by property owners in exchange for a reduction in the owner's tax burden. Consequently, once granted, the easement ensures the continued maintenance of the historic property at the owner's expense for both his and other Virginians' benefit. The need for additional resources for this function is supported by an increase in the total number of easements and the growing complexity of the program. In fiscal year 1995, the last year in which the agency had a full-time easement coordinator, the program consisted of 211 properties, most owned by the people who had established the easement. Today, while the agency lacks a full-time coordinator, it holds 377 easements (an 83 percent increase) and many of the properties have transferred to owners who may be unaware that an easement even exists. The Internal Revenue Service requires that any organization authorized to accept easements be capable of inspecting those easements and ensuring that easement conditions are followed. If the organization cannot accomplish these tasks, then the Internal Revenue Service can forbid it from accepting any additional easements. Because other staff have to provide these functions as time permits, inspections and technical assistance to owners are not being performed as frequently as needed.)

This system was originally built in 1995 using grants from and partnerships with the National Park Service, the Army Corps of Engineers, the College of William and Mary, and the Virginia Department of Transportation. The goal of the data-sharing system was to put information about Virginia's historic resources at the fingertips of highway engineers, the Corps of Engineers, local governments, and other key agencies so as to ensure that some consideration was given to these structures as projects were implemented. All told, the system represented a state and federal investment of more than $1 million. However, DHR was to maintain and update the system with additional historic properties as they were indentified. Currently, the agency must rely upon part-time staff to fulfill this responsibility. This reliance upon part-time staff ignores the need for understanding technology, architecture, and archaeology necessary to provide the best information engineers and local planners.)

Explanation:

(This amendment provides $500,000 from the general fund in the second year to the City of Petersburg for its share of the costs of an Army Corps of Engineers-sponsored project to dredge the Appomattox River. This project has a number of partners, including the City of Petersburg, the Army Corps of Engineers, the Cameron Foundation, a non-profit organization, and Vulcan Materials, a private company. Due to contaminated sediments found in the Appomattox River, early efforts to dredge this waterway were suspended, resulting in even further siltation of the channel. The City of Petersburg has spent to date $1.7 million on various aspects of this project, including the location of a suitable site for dredge spoils. Vulcan Materials is willing to sell the selected site to the city for a discounted price and the Cameron Foundation has agreed to provide $1.5 million for the site's acquisition. To date, the Army Corps of Engineers has spent $7.5 million to further this project, and once final project engineering, design, and permitting are complete, will spend an additional $10 million for dredging and construction of the spoils placement site.)

The agency shall then develop and issue a Request for Proposals to provide the Commonwealth with a statewide contract specifically for converged voice, data and video telecommunication services. The resultant contract shall become the standard for the acquisition of all converged telecommunications services by the Commonwealth and its agencies and institutions. In the event that additional contracts are used to acquire converged telecommunications services, they must adhere to the requirements and standards documented in the scope of this contract. Such converged communications services contracts shall include a defined scope and a list of requirements specifically designed for converged communications services."

Explanation:

(This amendment directs VITA to adopt converged communications services standards and to procure such services separately from traditional telecommunications services. Converged communications services are an emerging area offering the Commonwealth benefits, but also presenting potential pitfalls. For example, it is generally understood that the Internet presents data protection challenges. Converged communications use the Internet, turning voice into data and, in so doing, expose voice conversations to some of the same risks as data transmission. It is therefore important for the Commonwealth to define the appropriate security standards for such applications and ensure that all acquired systems meet these standards.)

Prince William County is home to Virginia's largest commuter lot, located at Horner Road and I95. It was constructed only recently, and yet, it is at over 110 percent capacity on a daily basis. Increasingly, commuters from Stafford, Fredericksburg and points south are driving to Prince William and taking advantage of the ride-share (slug or carpooling) and public transportation programs in place. That, combined with high residential growth, has led to a major shortage in commuter parking on the eastern side of Prince William, which is becoming a disincentive for these commuting options. At Route 234 and I-95 in Dumfries is located an existing yet small VDOT commuter lot. It too fills up beyond capacity on a daily basis, but where this lot is located, VDOT owns an additional five acres of land, ready and able to be developed into expanded commuter parking.)

The proceeds of such bonds or other obligations shall be used exclusively for the purpose of providing funds, with any other available funds, for paying costs incurred or to be incurred for the acquisition, design, construction, financing and operation of an adequate, modern, safe and efficient highway system which comprises the Virginia Coalfield Expressway Corridor Program; such costs include environmental and engineering studies, rights-of-way acquisition, engineering, design, construction, improvements, operation, issuance and other financing costs, and other expenses of the Authority.

2. The proceeds of the bonds or other obligations herein authorized shall be expended by the Virginia Coalfield Coalition Authority for the purpose for which they were issued.

3. All expenses incurred under this Act shall be paid from the proceeds of the bonds or other obligations or from any available funds as the Virginia Coalfield Coalition Authority shall determine.
